Fine Concert Tonight

Through the efforts of Mrs. Mabel Gray Young an unusually fine concert will be given at Arts and Crafts Hall this (Thursday) evening by the eminent New York pianist, Charles Cooper, and Lawrence Strauss, one of San Francisco's favorite singers. Mr. Cooper is playing concert programs through the west, returning to New York in October. The well-known critic, H. F. Krehbiel of the New York Tribune, has this to say of his playing:

"Mr. Cooper proved himself to be an artist of unusual gifts of much charm, of much poetic feeling." He comes with uniformly fine criticisms from Boston, New York and other Eastern cities where his playing is well known.

The work of Lawrence Strauss is too well known to need comment. Carmel should turn out en force to greet these two artists.

Tickets are on sale at The Seven Arts.

Robert Stimmell is here from Long Beach. He will assist Phil assist Phil Whiting in mechanical work at the Forest Theater.

H. S. Howard, Berkeley publisher, who was here a week ago with his wife, has returned with his son, daughter-in-law and grand child for a fortnight's visit.

George Sterling was here a few days last week, the guest of his old friend Herbert Heron. The poet's latest work, Rosamund, a poetic drama, will shortly be published.

At an affair in honor of the wife Dr. J. C. Merriam, given by Mrs. Forrest Shreve, there were the following guests: Mrs. MacDougal, Mrs. Duggar, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Fenner, Mrs. Cannon, Miss Woodford, Miss Hemme and Miss Huber.

Owing to the opening reception reception of the art exhibition on Monday evening next, the meeting of the Reading Circle scheduled for that evening will not be held.

T. P. Joy, County Clerk, was in town last Saturday, gathering up registration material. The local list was increased by about twenty names since May 4.

Did you ever go in swimming and have someone swipe your clothes? Imagine how Frederick Preston Search felt, when, after taking a dip in the Carmel River, he discovered that his automobile had been stolen. On the same day three cars were stolen in Monterey. Search's car was recovered on the Del Monte Forest grounds.

Restoration Activities

That the people of Carmel are much interested in the fund-raising campaign for Mission Restoration is evident from the large attendance at the Spanish affair last Thursday evening.

The redecorated and renovated Arts and Crafts Hall never held a gayer or better satisfied company of people; and credit is due Ann Dare and her club co-workers for the splendid entertainment provided.

There was an informative and interesting address by Rev. R. M. Mestres. "La Paloma" was sung with spirit and native fire by two of the San Gabriel entertainers, and they also gave the Snake dance. That Marian Boke can sing as well as act was made manifest by her rendition of two charming bergerettes. Lucy Rothe gave a delightful dance. Under the direction of Lottita Buckingham, eight of our own young people stepped the pic-

After the formal program general dancing was enjoyed until midnight.

Throughout Monterey county enthusiasm marks the campaign, and there is hope not only that the quota of $100,000 will be raised, but that it will be exceeded.

Canvas for funds in the business places of this city was begun last week and will be completed in a few days. The solicitors have yet to record the first refusal to subscribe. It must be remembered that aside from historic and religious reasons, there is a big commercial incentive to subscribe.

Highlands News Notes

Thomas S. Parkhurst of Highlands Studio, who has been hiking from Lake Tahoe to the Yosemite with Carl Spitzer of Toledo, Ohio, has returned with his guest to the Inn.

Miss Margaret Davis entertained with a dinner dance for a few of her friends last Saturday, at the Inn. Among the guests were the Misses Wycliffe Covington, Suzanne Weed and Messrs. Herbert Jenks, Wills Covington, Harold Helms and Gordon Davis.

Mrs. Allan Dimond and her sister, Miss Roberta Deal, who have taken a cottage in Carmel, were here Monday, visiting their parents.

Attorney F. A. Brogan has returned to Omaha, after a delightful visit with Madam and Mrs. Brogan, who are here indefinitely.

Former Lieutenant Governor A. J. Wallace, now an aspirant for U. S. Senator, spent a few days here with his wife and family, who are just now entertaining his sister, Mrs. J. C. Healy of Long Beach.

Veterans Protest

William Kent has "apologized" for his attempt to be funny in his celebrated pension bill. His later action is handicapped by the fact that apology is belated several years, and is forthcoming now for the reason that he is appealing for votes. It was condemned by Grand Army posts and made the subject of admonishment at the time it was promulgated—the same as now—with-out eliciting anything resembling an apology from its author.—Oakland Tribune.

What Think You?

One of the constitutional amendments on which Californians will vote next fall provide that:

"No form of vaccination, inoculation or other medication shall hereafter be made a condition for admission to or attendance in any public school, college, university or other educational institution in this state."

It's a good amendment.

It always was a dark mystery to us why any clean and healthy child should be compelled to have a raw place scraped on its arm and diseased pus from a sick calf daubed on the sore before the child could be admitted to school.—S. F. Daily News.

Looking At It From the Inside

Rehearsals of the two Dunsany plays, The Golden Doom and The Tents of the Arabs—to be staged at the Forest Theatre on Friday and Saturday, August 13 and 14, both plays each evening—go forward with enthusiasm. And this is not surprising; no one with a sense of beauty in prose, or for dramatic construction, or for striking, powerful sketches of character and conduct, can even read these plays without a stir in the heart. He is so simple, this aristocrat of Meath! And so strong!

These rehearsals, by the way, are developing an interest quite apart from the dramatic, especially to those of us who can eavesdrop behind the scenes. Such strange problems arise—such cosmic questions!—For instance, which play should open the program, and which one close it? In The Golden Doom a king deposes himself, desperately, despairingly casting his crown into the dust for the good of his kingdom, as he thinks—though in truth it is merely that a child may have a golden hoop to roll away. H. W. Morse, as the King, is a butt for those practical jokers who dwell forever on Olympus; he personifies the flippancy of fate; or, if you prefer, he is a victim of those frightful evaluations of Destiny, in whose esteem crowns are but playthings after all. In The Tents of the Arabs another monarch, sitting in rags and dust before his own gate, sees an impostor lifted to his throne, himself applauding—and this he does with joy, for freedom's sake and for love. In this characterization, Herbert Heron will show us that Gordian Knot of preachers and metaphysicians, free-will under necessity—the undoubted power of choice, but with it, in its very nature, the irresistible urge of instinct to choose a certain thing and no other. . . . Now which is the more vital problem, the one most worthy of emphasis? Which play should close the evening?

Think too of Maurice Stoney, who, as one of the children in The Golden Doom, writes with a golden nugget on a door of iron. He should write, of course, in the cuneiform, the Babylonian hieroglyph; he must do so, you think, for there are the winged horses, the twenty-foot gates of Zericon, arms and accoutrements of Babylonian soldiers. All the atmosphere is of most ancient Mesopotamia. Yet—he speaks in English; why should he not write in script? Which horn of this petty dilemma will they choose; these antiquarians of the Eighty-Acre Tract?

And an iron door—at an age when iron was almost unknown! They might change the text, to be sure, substituting "bronze" for "iron"; but if ever Dunsany came to hear of it—!

Thank fortune, though, there is such a thing as poetic license. The plays will go on; we shall see Dunsany soon—Dunsany, not in his six-foot-four of flesh, but in a nobler embodiment. For his best self is in his work.
